Section One: Project Activity Summary

Storytelling is vital to building positive brand awareness for the American Legion Auxiliary Foundation. Pictures speak louder than words. We'd really like for you to capture some great storytelling photos for us to share. You never know, they might just show up on the big screen at National Convention! It would also be helpful if you can jot down a few quotes from those receiving the grant when you have a chance. Quotes are often gold nuggets within our story. Please refer to the bullet points below from our Brand Guidelines that offer some great suggestions for taking photos that can be used in future communications:

- Seek to capture a moment of genuine interaction between people.
- Even though the focus is to share what the grant provided, it's really about service to the veterans, military and their families. So capture pictures of the recipients receiving, accepting, and even using what the grant provided.
- Provide a description for us – who are the people, what is happening in the photo?
- Try to obtain written consent from those you photograph. If you have verbal consent that will work, but written is preferred. (Please see consent form.)

Along with photos, please include any newspaper or other media coverage gained as a result of the grant.

1. How many veterans did this grant impact?

2. Briefly, how were the grant funds used?

3. In what way did this grant make a difference for the recipients? For the community?

4. Please share any online media coverage and/or social media posts regarding any publicity?

5. Of what were you most proud?

6. Share a few quotes from the recipients?

7. Is there anything else you'd like to share?
